Ms. Andersen,

Copied below is publicly available information regarding "Bambigate" that I have found or been given. I will be sending it and other information in several emails. If you read all of it closely, which I'm sure you will, I think you will get a good idea of how Mr. Fitzpatrick operates and his ethical standards.

These articles and documents are copied page by page, as separate images. If you have trouble reading an image, click on it and enlarge it, and it should become more legible.

Clinton to pitch peace talks for Koreans

■ Announcement today: Clinton would join the process, aimed at creating a permanent peace.

■ CUBA ISLAND, South Korea
President Clinton, upon his return from a visit to South Korea, today will propose four-way talks today — involving the United States, China, South Korea and North Korea — to create a permanent peace agreement between the two Koreas.

The proposal, which has been discussed for some time, was announced by Clinton's spokesman, Mike McClellan. Clinton said the talks would be held in the near future, possibly in the summer of 1997. The talks would be held in a neutral location, possibly in the United States or in a third country. School board backs bilingual program

BELVIDERE — Plans for a bilingual program won Belvidere School Board approval Monday.

The program will send elementary students who can't speak or read English proficiently to a half-day program at a school in the district.

About 100 students in kindergarten through sixth grades will need help next fall, according to estimates by the district's Educational Issues Committee.

Parents will have to approve of the program before their children would be pulled from regular classes for half a day.

ROCKFORD — About 200 people marched along the east bank of the Rock River Sunday morning to raise money to the fight multiple sclerosis.

Autumn-like weather was blamed for the turnout, which fell short of the 250 people organizers had hoped would attend the seven-mile walk. Multiple Sclerosis Society spokeswoman Deborah Hein said.

vate property without permission. The charges are misdemeanors that each carry a maximum $500 fine and six-month jail sentence.

Fitzpatrick would not say whether the police department was seeking to fire Rinaldo for the charges, which are the result of a four-month internal investigation conducted by two sergeants and an assistant deputy police chief.

"Nobody is above the rules and regulations and the public trust," Fitzpatrick said. "We'll pursue the charges, and if after hearing the case the commission agrees with the charges, we'll seek what we think are appropriate sanctions."

Rinaldo's attorney, Cain, said: "This four-month investigation, which started based upon what in the law is a petty offense . . . represents politics at its worst on the local level. Rinaldo has been connected to people outside police administration — such as Tim Simms — so the administration does not politically trust Joe Rinaldo."

Simms, a former Republican state representative and senator, is considering running against Mayor Charles Box, a Democrat. Cain called Rinaldo a dedicated officer who was promoted to head the traffic department on merit and seniority.

"For the chief of police to attempt now to try and terminate a veteran police officer's employment is unconscionable and we won't let that happen."

Fitzpatrick dismissed the charges that politics influenced the investigation. "I'm disappointed in his professionalism, but we'll stick to higher ground and the issues of the case. It's obviously our burden to prove it, and we intend to do it."

Sheriff Casparini declined to comment Monday on the charges against Rinaldo. Fitzpatrick said the sheriff would be called under subpoena to testify at Rinaldo's full hearing when it is scheduled.

Rinaldo was suspended with pay on Dec. 12 pending the internal investigation. He continues to be paid about $1,128 per week.

What's next

This afternoon, the Rockford Board of Fire and Police Commissioners is expected to set a date for a probable cause hearing in Rinaldo's case. A full hearing, the equivalent of an internal trial, would be scheduled within 30 days after the probable cause hearing.

Council approves mayor's nominees

By Scott Williams

Mayor Charles Rickerd's nominees for the city council and police and fire departments were approved Monday by the city council.
